

8 Law in context

Toward a New Legal Common Sense

Boaventura de Sousa Santos

Second edition

 Butterworths
LexisNexis™

Contents

Preface xv
Acknowledgements xxv

Chapter 1

The Tension Between Regulation and Emancipation in Western Modernity and its Demise 1

- 1 Modern regulation and emancipation 1
- 2 The role of science and law in the management of excesses and deficits of modernity 4
- 3 A paradigmatic transition? 7
 - 3.1 On oppositional postmodernism 12
 - 3.2 Oppositional postmodernism and law 14

Chapter 2

Toward an Oppositional Postmodern Understanding of Law 21

- 1 The tension between regulation and emancipation 21
 - 1.1 The reception of Roman law 21
 - 1.2 The rationalist natural law 25
 - 1.3 Theories of the social contract 30
- 2 Legal-political modernity and capitalism 39

2.1	The first period: liberal capitalism	40
2.2	The second period: organized capitalism	44
2.3	The third period: disorganized capitalism	51
3	Unthinking law	61
3.1	From the epistemological to the social transition	61
3.2	The state or the world system?	66
3.3	Recoupling law with the polity?	69
3.4	Legal Utopia or Utopian pragmatism?	71
4	Conclusion	82
Chapter 3
Legal Plurality and the Time-Spaces of Law: the Local, the National and the Global 85
1	Introduction	85
2	The structural components of law	86
3	Legal plurality	89
Chapter 4
The Law of the Oppressed: the Construction and Reproduction of Legality in Pasargada 99
1	Introduction	99
2	Justiciability, dispute processing and legal rhetoric	100
2.1	Explicit and implicit issues: the object of the dispute as the result of a bargaining process	104
2.1.1	The breadth or narrowness of the dispute	105
2.1.2	The processed dispute and the real dispute	106
2.2	Topoi, forms and procedures: forms as arguments	106
2.3	Language and silence in dispute processing	108
2.3.1	Common language, technical language, folk technical language	108
2.3.2	Language and silence	109
3	Dispute prevention and dispute settlement in Pasargada law	112

3.1	The Setting	112
3.2	Dispute prevention in Pasargada	117
3.2.1	The ratification of legal relations by the Residents' Association	117
3.2.2	Substantive norms defining the type and range of the relationships	122
3.2.3	Forms and procedures for legalizing relationships	128
3.3	Dispute settlement in Pasargada	134
3.3.1	Process	134
3.3.2	Topoi of dispute settlement	137
4	Conclusion	155
4.1	The structure of legal plurality	155
4.2	The view from inside	158
4.2.1	Non-professional	159
4.2.2	Accessible	159
4.2.3	Participatory	160
4.2.4	Consensual	160
Chapter 5
Globalization, Nation-States and the Legal Field: From Legal Diaspora to Legal Ecumenism? 163
1	Introduction	163
2	The globalization process	165
3	Paradigmatic and sub-paradigmatic readings of globalization	172
4	The nature and types of globalization(s)	177
5	The social basis of global agency	182
6	The globalization of the legal field: a multi-factor analytical framework	187
6.1	The position of the country in the world system	188
6.2	Routes to and through modernity	188
6.3	Families of legal cultures and kinship ties	191
7	The globalization of the legal field: a survey and a research agenda	194
7.1	The globalization of nation-state regulation	194

7.1.1	The heterogeneous state	194
7.1.2	The relative weight of transnational and national factors	197
7.2	The law of regional integration: the European Union	200
7.2.1	The national and the transnational	202
7.2.2	The state and the market	204
7.2.3	Democracy, social cohesion and interest representation	205
7.2.4	Europe, the world system and the history of Europe	207
7.3	Global capital's own law: lex mercatoria	208
7.3.1	The origins and elements of lex mercatoria	208
7.3.2	Lex Mercatoria and the world system	211
7.3.3	Lex Mercatoria and legal cultures	212
7.4	Transnational third worlds: the law of people on the move	215
7.4.1	International migration	217
7.4.2	Refugees and displaced people	224
7.4.3	Citizenship, international migration and cosmopolitanism	228
7.5	Ancient grievances and new solidarities: the law of indigenous peoples	237
7.5.1	Historical and cultural roots of indigenous rights	241
7.5.2	Self-determination versus the ethno-cratic state	247
7.5.3	Building transnational coalitions	251
7.5.4	Learning from the South of the South	254
7.6	Cosmopolitanism and human rights	257
7.6.1	International human rights and national sovereignty	259
7.6.2	Universalism versus cosmopolitanism?	268
7.6.3	Cultural embeddedness and cosmopolitanism	274
7.6.4	Cultural imperialism and the possibility of counter-hegemony	278
7.6.5	Human rights as an emancipatory script	280
7.6.6	Human rights, development and paradigmatic transition	289
7.7	The global commons: jus humanitatis	301

Chapter 6

Law and Democracy: The Global Reform of Courts 313

1	Introduction	313
2	The four dimensions of the global hegemonic consensus	314
3	The rule of law/judicial consensus	317
4	The globalization of the rule of law and judicial reform	318
4.1	The judicial system in core countries	318
4.2	The judicial system in semi-peripheral countries	320
4.2.1	The democratic transition and the fight against corruption	320
4.2.2	Court reform in the semi-periphery: a case of high-intensity globalization	326
4.3	USAID in Colombia: a case study of high-intensity global legal reform	331
5	State weakness, the judicialization of politics and the exportation of the rule of law	335
6	Prospects for democracy	342
6.1	The role of law and courts in representative democracy	343
6.2	The role of law and courts in participatory democracy	345
7	Conclusion	351

Chapter 7

On Modes of Production of Law and Social Power 353

1	Introduction	353
2	Power, empowering, disempowering	356
2.1	The contributions of Foucault and feminist theory	356
2.2	Power, constellations of power and social emancipation	358
3	The state and civil society	363
4	A structure-agency map of capitalist societies in the world system	369
5	Reading the structure-agency map	373
5.1	The structural places and their dimensions	374
5.3	Forms of power	379

- 5.4 Forms of law 384
- 5.5 Forms of knowledge 395
- 6 On structural determination: asymmetries and bifurcations 399
- 7 Expanding the legal and the political fields 404
- 8 Conclusion 414

Chapter 8

Law: A Map of Misreading 417

- 1 Introduction 417
- 2 Understanding maps 420
- 3 A symbolic cartography of law 425
 - 3.1 Law and scale 426
 - 3.2 Law and projection 430
 - 3.3 Law and symbolization 434
- 4 Symbolic cartography and oppositional postmodern law 436

Chapter 9

Can Law Be Emancipatory? 439

- 1 Introduction 439
- 2 Setting the context for the question 440
- 3 The western bias and the plausibility of the question 443
- 4 The demise of the social contract and the rise of social fascism 447
 - 4.1 Social exclusion and the crisis of the modern social contract 447
 - 4.2 The emergence of social fascism 453
 - 4.3 Social fascism and the production of a stratified civil society 456
- 5 On subaltern cosmopolitanism 458
- 6 Subaltern cosmopolitanism and law: the conditions for cosmopolitan legality 465
 - 6.1 It is one thing to use a hegemonic instrument in a given political struggle. It is another thing to use it in a hegemonic fashion 466

- 6.2 A non-hegemonic use of hegemonic legal tools is premised upon the possibility of integrating them in broader political mobilizations that may include legal as well as illegal actions 467
- 6.3 Non-hegemonic forms of law do not necessarily favour or promote subaltern cosmopolitanism 468
- 6.4 Cosmopolitan legality is voracious in terms of the scales of legality 468
- 6.5 Cosmopolitan legality is a subaltern legality targeting the uncivil and the strange civil society 469
- 6.6 As a subaltern form of legality cosmopolitanism submits the three modern principles of regulation to a hermeneutics of suspicion 469
- 6.7 The gap between the excess of meaning and the deficit of task is inherent to a politics of legality. Cosmopolitan legality is haunted by this gap 469
- 6.8 In spite of the deep differences between demo-liberal legality and cosmopolitan legality, the relations between them are dynamic and complex 470
- 7 Cosmopolitan legality in action 471
 - 7.1 Law in the contact zones 472
 - 7.1.1 Multicultural human rights 474
 - 7.1.2 The traditional and the modern: the other modernities of indigenous peoples and traditional authorities 475
 - 7.1.3 Cultural citizenship 476
 - 7.1.4 Intellectual property rights, biodiversity and human health 477
 - 7.2 Law and the democratic rediscovery of labour 480
 - 7.3 Law and non-capitalist production 484
 - 7.4 Law for non-citizens 487
 - 7.5 The state as the newest social movement 489
- 8 Conclusion 494

Bibliography 497Index of Names 547*Index of Subjects 555